

Department of Interior rescinds 2008 off-reservation gaming decision

Staff Writer

Speaking at a meeting of the National Congress of American Indians (NCAI) held in Milwaukee on June 13, Assistant Secretary for Indian Affairs, Larry Echo Hawk, affirmed that he has rescinded a 2008 memorandum that limited the ability of Native tribes across the United States to expand their offreservation gaming enterprises.

In January of that year, the Department of the Interior notified 11 tribal governments that their applications for off-reservation casinos were going to be rejected, in part because of the distance between the reservation and the proposed casino site. Officials believed that Indians would not directly benefit from jobs created at off-reservation sites and must have to leave their homes on the reservation to gain employment.

At that time, Associate Secretary of the Interior Carl Altman stated 'although IGRA (Indian Gaming Regulatory Act) was intended to promote economic development of reservations, it was not intended to encourage the establishment of Indian gaming facilities far from existing reservations.

In announcing that he was rescinding the 2008 memorandum, Echo Hawk stated the Department will now move forward to process pending offreservation gaming applications pursuant to current federal law and existing regulations, which set forth a number of criteria that must be met before an off-reservation gaming application can be approved.

Echo Hawk noted the decision follows meetings held with tribal leaders from across the United States last fall. "Our balanced and considered approach to reviewing off-reservation gaming applications was affirmed during deliberate consultation with tribal leaders," he said. "The 2008 guidance memorandum was unnecessary and was issued without the benefit of tribal consultation. We will proceed to process off-reservation gaming applications in a transparent manner, consistent with existing law."

The ruling could affect the Nation's interest in opening a casino in Lynwood, IL, about 300 miles away from the Executive Office in Black River Falls. In March 2006 the Nation did submit a letter of application to the Bureau of Indian Affairs asking that land it owns in Lynwood, IL be placed in trust for gaming purposes under the IGRA.

Other Wisconsin based tribes who could be positively affected by the announcement are the Menominee Tribe who is seeking to build a casino at the site of the former Dairyland Greyhound Track in Kenosha and the Stockbridge-Munsee, who have long sought to built a casino in New York State.

Provisions in IGRA and existing regulations state the tribes seeking to operate offreservation gaming facilities need to satisfy three independent and distinct requirements.

A news release issued by the Department of the Interior following Echo Hawk's announcement listed those requirements.

"One requirement is the tribe generally must have land acquired in trust by the Department for the benefit of the tribe. In addition, the tribe must receive a positive determination from the Department that off-reservation gaming is in the best interest of the tribe and not detrimental to the surrounding community. The tribe also must have concurrence from the Governor of the state in which the gaming facility would be located.

Public comment is sought and considered during this process and local communities have several meaningful opportunities to provide input on a tribe's application for offreservation gaming, as well as for the acquisition of land to be put into trust on behalf of a tribe. Finally, the tribe must enter into a tribal-state gaming compact to govern the conduct of gaming at the proposed facility. Many states require gaming compacts to be approved by the State Legislature.

In the 23 years since IRGA's enactment, five tribes have gained approval to operate off-reservation gaming enterprises.

Ho-Chunk Nation Legislature places Rep. Pettibone on administrative leave

Submitted by Anne Thundercloud

The Legislature of the Ho-Chunk Nation placed Representative Clarence Pettibone on Administrative Leave on Friday, June 17, 2011, pending the resolution of indictments handed down late Wednesday by a Federal grand jury against Pettibone and two other individuals. Pettibone's current term in the Ho-Chunk Nation Legislature ends on July 5, 2011, and he did not run for re-election;

so the Leave is expected to last until his Legislative term expires.

"In light of these serious charges, the Legislature wanted to move swiftly and fairly to protect and ensure the integrity of the Ho-Chunk Nation government and businesses," Ho-Chunk Nation Vice-President Daniel Brown said Friday, June 17,

"In addition, we want to assure Ho-Chunk Nation

our business partners, and the public that these charges and alleged activities in no way reflect or represent the actions of our Legislature, our government, or the Ho-Chunk Nation as a whole.'

The Legislature met in emergency Special Session today to address the recent charges brought against Rep. Pettibone by the U.S. Department of Justice and to express their concerns directly with Rep. Pettibone. Under the Ho-Chunk Nation Constitution, the Legislature has the authority to address issues related to individual Legislators and to take appropriate steps to address those issues. While mindful that the charges are only accusations at this point and that Rep. Pettibone deserves the presumption of innocence afforded to all citizens under the U.S. Constitution, the Legislature was compelled to take this action in the best interests of the Ho-Chunk Nation. Putting Rep. Pettibone on Administrative Leave until this issue can be resolved protects his own rights as well as the overriding interests of the Ho-Chunk Nation, its people, and its partners.

Spiritual Advisor in need

Aho! My name is Ian. I apologize for expressing these words to all my elders.

I am from Black River Falls and was recently incarcerated. I apologize to the Ho-Chunk people for my actions as we are a whole and what one does affects us all.
I came to Jackson Correctional which unfortunately has a big native population for prisons. They allow us to smudge and do a pipe ceremony and sing on the drum weekly. They also allow monthly sweats. Our spiritual advisor passed away last year due to diabetes. Since his passing our new spiritual advisor comes from Green Bay and can't make our sweats most months because of the distance.

We are asking if there is anyone willing to come to Jackson Correctional to run our sweats and be our spiritual advisor. The D.O.C. compensates you for mileage and housing costs.

The security here has no knowledge of native culture. Security staff recently asked one of the native men if there were "gang songs" being taught on the drum. That's the extent of their knowledge here. Our spiritual advisor now won't educate the staff due to the distance he lives from here. We need a person who will stand for our spiri-tual needs and to help educate the native inmates too.

The drum is also a big educator here and it changed lives as well as mine. A fellow Ho-Chunk who was released taught our group many Ho-Chunk songs that we still sing today. Your songs are needed. Our healing has begun and your knowledge is needed.

We were wrong in what we did to get here. We were wrong to have brought shame on our Nation. We have made mistakes but do we not all make mistakes in our path of life? We humbly and respectfully ask for your spiritual guidance.

BRF Radical Runners complete second Ragnar Relay

By Kathleen Clemons, MS, CES, RCEP

Luckily for the Black River Falls Radical Runners. Mother Nature decided to cooperate. After several days of record heat and humidity, the temperature dropped significantly and provided great running conditions for the 197 mile relay race from Madison to Chicago held on June 10th and 11th.

Last August the team completed their first 193 mile relay from Winona to Minneapolis (Great River Race). When the Madison to Chicago race was announced, the team wanted to give this one a try. The team consisted of twelve runners who ran three different times over the course of the race. Total distances for each runner ranged from 12.6 miles up to a total of 20.7 miles (the total distance is divided into three runs ranging from 2.5 to 9.9 miles). The race operates in a leap frog pattern with all twelve runners completing their first leg and then repeating this pattern two more times. The team ran all day and night until the finish line was reached. The team completed the 197 mile race in a time 30:14:31. There were 362 teams signed up and great team spirit was displayed throughout the event. People were dressed up in all sorts of costumes, wore crazy hats, decorated their vans and were just out to have a good time during this race. Teams cheered each other on and runners were encouraging to each other along the race route, truly a great experience in sportsmanship.

Some of the team members in the picture cannot participate in the Great River race in August but other runners have been added to the team to complete the Winona to Minneapolis journey. The team will consist of all Ho-Chunk Nation employees and tribal members and they are ready for the challenge.

The Black River Falls Radical Runners would like to thank all of their sponsors: Sunset Tavern, Sand Creek Brewery, Jon Stowe, Perry Creek Cranberry Corporation, Riverside Auto, Riverview Inn Supper Club, Zingg Design and Ripp Distributing. The runners would also like to say a special thank you to the four van drivers who transported them to their exchanges: Steve Garvin, Shelly Kagigebi, Andrea Rockney and Kaye Henrickson.

American Cancer Society's tips to limit sunlight exposure

With summer finally here, many of us are looking forward to spending more time outside in the sun. Weather on the beach, on a golf course, or just relaxing in the yard, we all need to be aware of the protection needed when exposed to the sun's UV rays.

Although people with light

skin are much more likely to have sun damage, darker skinned people, including Native Americans, can also be affected. While sunburns are thought to increase a person's risk of skin cancer, especially melanoma, UV exposure, even without causing sunburn can raise skin cancer risk.

Some people think about sun protection only when they spend a day at the lake, beach or pool. But sun exposure adds up day after day and it happens every time a person is in the sun. While exposure to the sunlight helps the body make Vitamin D to stay healthy, too much sunlight can be harmful.

As part of its Cancer Education and Wellness Curriculum for American Indian and Alaskan Communities, the American Cancer Society's Circle of Life suggests taking the following steps to limit exposure to UV rays.

Cover up: When people are out in the sun, they should wear clothing to protect as much skin as possible. Longsleeved shirts, long pants or long skirts cover the most skin and are the most protective. Dark colors generally provide more protection than light colors. A tightly woven fabric protects better than loosely woven clothing. Dry fabric is usually more protective than

Use sunscreen: A sunscreen is a product that is applied to the skin for some protection against the sun's ultraviolet (UV) rays. Sunscreens are available in many forms; lotions, creams. ointments, gels, wipes and lip balms, to name a few. Choose a sunscreen with a Sun Protection Factor (SPF) of 15 or higher.

Wear a cap or hat: A hat with a least a two to three-inch brim is ideal because it protects areas often exposed to the sun, such as the neck, ears, eyes, forehead, nose and scalp. A shade cap, that looks like a baseball cap with about seven inches of fabric down the sides and back, is also good. A baseball cap can protect the front and top of the head but not the back of the neck or ears, where skin cancers commonly develop. Straw hats are not recommended unless tightly

Wear sunglasses: Sunglasses that protect UV rays can help protect the eyes from sun damage. Check the label of the sunglasses to make sure they absorb both UVA and UVB rays. Some labels may say "UV absorption up to 400 nm." This is the same as 100 percent UV absorption. The sunglasses to not have to cost a lot to have UV protection.

Limit midday exposure: UV rays are most intense during the middle of the day, usually between the hours of 10:00 a.m. and 4:00 p.m. To determine the sun's intensity, follow the shadow test. If a person's shadow is shorter than they are, the sun's rays are the strongest. If possible, stay out of the sun at this time. If you must be outdoors, protect your skin.

Avoid tanning beds and sunlamps: Tanning beds and lamps give out both UVA and even UVB rays. These rays can cause serious long-term skin damage and contribute to Protect children from the sun: Children need special protection since they tend to spend more time outdoors and burn more easily. Parents and other caregivers should be sure their children wear clothing, hats, sunscreen and sunglasses to protect them from harmful UV rays.

Check the skin: Along with having a health provider examine a person's skin each year, a person should also check their own skin once a month. Some parts, for example, on the back, may be difficult to see and a family member or friend can help. The first time, a person should spend a fair amount of time going over the entire skin. Learning the pattern of one's own moles, freckles, blemishes and other marks on the skin will help notice any changes. When any concerns arise, contact a health care provider.

Local group preserves Whitewater Effigy Mounds

Submitted by Carol Christ Member Whitewater Lands Commission & Friend of the Effigy Mounds

On Saturday May 28, the Landmarks Commission and Friends of the Effigy Mounds held a presentation at the Whitewater Effigy Mounds Preserve, part of the Archaeology Month celebration.

Those attending the celebration heard Kori Oberle, Director of the Hoard Museum in Fort Atkinson and Rob Nurre, Chair of the Wisconsin Archeological Society describe these mounds as a real treasure.

Oberle explained the history of mounds, particularly the late Woodland groups in see an interactive program "Mysteries of the Mounds." Nurre stressed the uniqueness of the mounds group in Whitewater. Built near springs, the group features 13 mounds, some conical, some oblong or linear or in the form of birds, a panther, a turtle and a mink. He noted there is a possibility of an intaglio (a shape dug into the ground) at the northwest end of the southeast Wisconsin. She

invited everyone to explore volunteers led tours and answered questions.

Located in an oak savanna on the west side of Whitewater, the mounds were built between 700 and 1100 AD. Known as the "Maples Mound Group' after the farm on which they were located, they were first recorded by State Archaeologist Charles E. Brown in 1920

In 1990, Frank Stekel, a UW Professor, used aerial infrared photography to confirm two mounds in a cultivated area on the west side. The State of Wisconsin Burial Sites Preservation Law, passed in 1985, protects all 20 acres of the site.

Because the site is protected, a 10-foot buffer separates it from neighboring homes. It was recently learned that one homeowner had built a fence on one of the mounds and other homeowners have extended their lots onto the preserve. The Landmarks Commission and Friends of the Effigy Mounds will continue to work to insure that the boundaries and buffer zone are adhered to.

This is not the first time the mounds have been in harm's way. In 1973 the Wisconsin Department of Transportation had plans to build a highway right through the mound group. At the last minute the City of Whitewater bought the 20 acres to save the mounds and the area was officially named Indian Mounds Park.

In 1991 the Maples Mound Group was placed on the National Register of Historic Places. In 1994 it was formally recognized as a local landmark.

In 2006, the city purchased the five acres on the west, saving the mounds discovered by Stekel.

Currently the Landmarks Commission and the Friends of the Effigy Mounds have joined forces with the Whitewater Parks and Recreation Board to preserve the mounds. What began a an effort to rename the site to Whitewater Effigy Mounds Preserve and limiting the visiting hours to the site, has grown into a long range preservation and maintenance plan. The Restoration Proposal, still in the draft stage, will not be final until approved by the Whitewater City Council. When approved, the Landmarks Commission and the Friends of the Mounds plan to offer educational opportunities and programs for visitors to the

Volunteers and city staff members have cleared brush and vegetation around the site. In April 30 students the cleanup during the city's annual "Make a Difference Day." On April 25, the first of several controlled burns was held to encourage the growth of native vegetation while destroying invasive plants.

Recently, the City of Whitewater dedicated a new sign marking the site. The sign was made possible, in part, with a donation from the Ho-Chunk Nation. The sign features the new name, Whitewater Effigy Mounds Preserve along with the Great Seal of the Ho-Chunk Nation. It reminds everyone that this is an ancient burial and religious site to be respected by all who come to this unique and special place.

Mission: Welcome Home

Staff Writer

After four years of deployment in Iraq, over 300 US Soldiers were reunited with their loved ones on June 17th in Madison WI. Hundreds of anxious family members awaited their soldiers, waving American flags donated by the Ho-Chunk Nation.

The Ho-Chunk Nation Department of Veterans Affairs donated 1,152 flags for the coming home of the National Guard Soldiers Office Manager Michael Rave was quoted in saying, "This was a great opportunity to show the tribal community and non tribal community what we do and who we support." These flags were waving lazily in the breeze as they were held by hands that could tell so many stories. These hands are hands that cradled their precious infants, awaiting their husbands return, hands that were worn with age and knowledge waiting to hold their sons and daughters returning from war.

A soldier holds his wife close as they are reunited.

Flags were held in the small innocent hands of children awaiting their moms or dads.

A young mother awaiting her husband, holding a small infant in her hands stated, "These flags are very meaningful to the families that are here waiting for their soldier to return. This flag is what these brave men and women were fighting for. They were fighting for the meaning of the flag. Freedom. And it isn't even our freedom they were fighting for, it was the freedom of those people that didn't have a voice, didn't have a choice in the war."

A father is reunited with his sons after a 12 month

The first plane arrived in Madison at 10:00 AM. The crowd grew impatient as the honored soldiers were seen across the airport grounds. In what seemed like eternity the soldiers finally reached their families in what was surely one of the longest walks they had taken. Wives wrapped their husbands in their arms, children raced to see their fathers and grandfathers. Many of the soldiers returning home got to see their infants for the very first time.

Tears of joy streamed down many faces as relief washed over them. These soldiers from the 1st Battalion, 147th Aviation Regiment, "Task Force Ironhawk" were deployed in August of 2010 to Iraq. Previous deployments included Kuwait: Jul 2001-Aug 2002; March-Dec 2003, and Kosovo: Jul 2006-Aug 2007. The soldiers that made up this division were from Wisconsin, Illinois, Michigan and Colorado. They were led by Sergeant Major David Christianson and Lieutenant Colonel Marty Pond.

deployment they had many accomplishments including 21,345 flight hours, zero accidents, 49,134 passengers moved, 1.3 million pounds of cargo moved, 1.25 million gallons of fuel pumped with zero spills over 105,000 miles covered, and the 2010 Army Aviation Association of America's John J. Stanko award recipient: recognizing the battalion as the best in Army National Guard for: Spc. Carlos Villa-Rivera, Kiel, Wis., who is a decontamination specialist who deployed to Iraq with Headquarters Company, 1st Battalion, 147th Aviation Regiment and was one of soldiers representing 31 nationalities who took the oath of citizenship Feb. 21 during a naturalization ceremony at Saddam Hussein's Al Faw palace in Baghdad.

The Stanko Award highlights, flying 1,986 missions totaling more than 15,000 combat hours without accidents in the 1st four months, 3 Companies moved more than 5,600 passengers and 660,000 pounds of cargo, 1 Company provided round-the-clock medical evacuation coverage at 4 locations (102 missions; transporting 109 patients). Their accomplishments are numerous and the pride that they have brought to their families is endless

"Our dedicated soldiers worked tirelessy throughout mobilization training and continued to do so across Iraq," said Lt. Col. Marty Pond, commander of the 1st Battalion, 147th Aviation "They truly embody the 'Big Red One' motto- No Mission to difficult, no sacrifise to great. Their pride and honored service is second to none. We were set up for success from the start because our soldiers just happen to be some of the greatest soldiers the U.S has ver sent to war.'

Now that the soldiers are back on U.S. soil, they say they are so happy to see their families and green grass. After home the soldiers they finally got to hear the long awaited, "Dismissed"

Ho-Chunk Gaming –Black River Falls celebrates 15 year anniversary

Submitted by Michelle Ramberg, Senior Manager-Public Relations

Ho-Chunk Gaming –Black River Falls ended their special anniversary event with a twist as Chubby Checker took the stage on Saturday, June 11, 2011. Entertaining the crowd with his classic songs that span over 45 years, Chubby invited many of his fans to join him on stage to show off their twisting skills. The concert marked the 15 years of business for Ho-Chunk Gaming -Black River Falls.

-Black River Falls.
On June 11, 1996, Ho-Chunk Gaming -Black River Falls opened its doors to the public for the first time after moving from its original location. Since then it has been a tradition to hold a special event in celebration of that opening day on an annual basis. "Every year, June 11th, is a special day for us," explains Rhonda Anderson, Interim Executive Manager at Ho-Chunk Gaming -Black River Falls. "It's a time we set aside each year to reinforce the appreciation that we have for our loyal guests that support us all year long. This year we marked 15 years and we wanted to sing their praises even louder with bigger prizes, more entertainment and a larger fireworks display than ever before."

Throughout the entire week excitement was in the air as Ho-Chunk Gaming- Black River Falls announced daily winners of over $200,000 worth of cash and prizes. Eric Kravcik, Promotions Manager at Ho-Chunk Gaming -Black River Falls, experienced Anniversary week for the first time and was impressed with the number of positive comments that he received from both the public and employees. 'From the time we announced the Equinox winner on Tuesday until the fireworks finale on Saturday, our employees were doing their best to make this event a success for all of our guests. It was a pleasure to be part of the team and I am excited to see what the next 15 years will bring."

Ho-Chunk Gaming continues to support local Relay for Life

Submitted by Michelle Ramberg, Senior Manager-Public Relations Ho-Chunk Gaming-Black

Ho-Čhunk Gaming- Black River Falls has answered the call to step up and stomp out cancer by signing on as a corporate sponsor for the Tomah Relay for Life event on June 10, 2011. This year's donation of $2,500 marks the third year in a row that Ho-Chunk Gaming has supported this event.

Relay for Life is the American Cancer's Society's main volunteer cancer fundraising event which has spread to over 20 countries worldwide. Each of these local events share a common worldwide objective to raise awareness, celebrate survivors, remember those who have lost their battles with cancer and to fight as a community against the spread of this disease.

Rhonda Anderson, Marketing Director at HoChunk Gaming- Black River Falls, stated that it was an easy decision to become involved with Relay for Life again this year. "Knowing how cancer effects so many of our friends, family and community members each year, we couldn't possibly turn down the opportunity to team up with our neighbors again to "Celebrate, Remember and Fight Back" against this disease."

The money donated from Ho-Chunk Gaming Black River Falls along with the other funds collected through this event will be used as research grants, as well as aid for prevention, detection and treatment programs. The relay for life event took place on Friday June 10, 2011 at the Tomah Senior High School track. Ho-Chunk Gaming —Black River Falls also created a team made up of employees that participated in this year's event.

Now, therefore, I, Scott Walker, Governor of the State of Wisconsin, do hereby proclaim Thursday, June 9, 2011, as HEAT AWARENSS DAY throughout the State of Wisconsin, and I commend this observance to all of our citizens.

Mountain Lions finding refuge in Wisconsin

Sara L. Peterson Staff Writer

Wisconsin has always had a rich history of having a diverse wildlife population. Many of the native animals are once again returning to the native habitat of Wisconsin. The successful comeback of the Timber Wolf, Elk, Moose and now the Mountain Lion is also making appearances here in Wisconsin after their homeland has been encroached upon by the growing human populations.

Cougars (Puma concolor) also known as puma, mountain lion, panther, catamount, American lion, and mishibijn (Ojibwa), once roamed throughout the state of Wisconsin. It was one of three wild cats native to the state, along with the bobcat (Lynx rufus) and the Canada lynx (Lynx canadensis). Currently bobcats are the only known breeding wild cat in the state, with a fall population of about 3,000 in northern Wisconsin, and lower numbers in other portions of the state. Canada lynx do not appear to breed in Wisconsin, but rare visits are made to the state from this northern wildcat. Wild cougars probably disappeared from the state by about 1910, but reports again began to surface in the 1940's of possible cougars in the state. These were probably of escaped captive cougars or misidentifications. Since the 1940's various naturalists and wildlife biologists collected reports of cougar observations.

Since 1991, the Wisconsin DNR has conducted a standardized system of collecting reports of cougars and other rare mammals. On January 18, 2008, a cougar was sighted near Milton, in Rock County, Wisconsin. The sighting was verified as 'cougar' from the tracks and DNA from a small drop of blood from a cut on the foot. Tracks were also found near Elkhorn, about 23 miles southeast of the Milton sighting. In early 2009, a cougar was sighted in Burnett County. Then in late 2009, a cougar was confirmed via tracks and photos travelling from St. Croix into Dunn County. Tracks and other sightings have also been confirmed in northern Wisconsin in 2010. (Wis DNR Report)

As the sightings of Cougars have increased, the Wisconsin DNR has been working diligently to come to a conclusion on whether these cats are here to stay or just passing through. To date, the DNR has confirmed that these cats are making their way back into Wisconsin and are likely here to stay. However, there haven't been any confirmed evidence of a breeding population in Wisconsin.

These cougars tend to find areas that are remote and abundant with food, most commonly the white-tailed deer. Although they will prey upon elk, livestock, and small mammals like mice, squirrels, raccoons, rabbits, and porcupines. They make their homes in rocky and hilly territories that provide cover for these elusive animals.

The mountain lion is a large cat that can reach up to 150 pounds and eight feet long. They have a long tail and have a tan to reddish orange coat, to gray coat. These animals can live up to 13 years in the wild and average 2 kittens a year. Kittens can stay with their mother for up to 2 years. Their territories can range from 10 miles to 350 miles.

Their elusiving nature has been the reason it has taken so long for officials to confirm the cats are living in the state of Wisconsin. These animals are extremely hard to track and find. The DNR is asking if anyone sees a cougar or sees large cat tracks to take high quality photos with a ruler as a size reference. Even though the risk of these animals attacking humans is very small it is still important to educate the public on what to do if you encounter a cougar. Safety Tips:

- Do not approach the animal Most mountain lions avoid a confrontation. Give them a way to escape.
- Stay calm and speak loudly and firmly.
- Do not run. Running may stimulate a mountain lion's instinct to chase. Stand and face the animal, maintain eye contact.
- Appear larger. Raise your arms. Open your jacket if your wearing one. Throw stones, branches or whatever you can reach without crouching or turning your back. Wave your arms slowly.
  The idea is to convince the lion that you are not easy prey and that you may be a danger to it.

  Maintain eye contact and slowly back away toward a building, vehicle or burn green.
- Protect small children so they won't panic and run.
- Fight back if attacked. Many potential victims have fought back successfully with rocks, sticks, caps, jackets, garden tools, their bare hands and even mountain bikes. Since a lion will normally try to bite the head or neck, try to remain standing and face
- With the increasing number of large predators in Wisconsin it is important to try and stay in groups when in large wooded remote areas.

As these cats are being pushed out of their native states by encroaching real estate development, the real estate development, the importance to educate the public about these animals increases. These cougars aren't to be feared, as they do not pose any threat to the human population as long as precautions are taken. The cougar has long been highly regarded by the Ojibwa and Native American people for many senerations. These people for many generations. These cats were always seen as a symbol of power and leadership. It is said that the cougar teaches people that leadership doesn't equate with dictatorship. Dictators are tyrants who abuse their power and prevent followers from doing things on their own and being a part of the decision making process. True leaders listen to and enable their followers. The key to personal power is confidence in the direction in which a person has chosen

Flood waters threaten Winnebago businesses update

Submitted by Jerome LaPointe, Sr. – Winnebago Indian News Editor

On May 25, the Winnebago tribal council received word that within days the Missouri River would reach flood stage in their area. It was decided that something needed to be done immediately to protect the Tribe's development. The recommendation was to construct a berm around the entire development and infrastructure to protect interior structures from raising ground water. Within days, the WinnaVegas development was surrounded by a 9 foot high berm, 3 feet higher than the Corps projections for flood water levels.

On the morning of Friday, June 10, the Winnebago tribal council was meeting with corp of engineers, the county sheriff, and other county officials to review information available on the flooding. The casino GM had gotten to work at 7am and she told me the water was visible from the casino access road. By 8am when the tribal council began their meeting, water was within 3 feet of the road. At or around 10am water begin flowing over the road from north to south. I was called to take pictures; I got out there around 12:30pm and local law enforcement had closed the road. Casino employees were moving all sensitive material to the WinnaVegas Inn, in the town of Sloan, IA, where they still maintain

Although the casino is closed down, staff are still working to process payroll for security (who are on the property 24-7), and to fill unemployment claims. The corp has told the tribe that the water will stay at these levels until September. They are currently releasing 150 cubic feet per second, which they say translates into 150 million gallons a second from the gavins point dam in Yankton, South Dakota.

Starting on June 23, they will begin releasing 155 cfps, and by Friday, June 24, 160 cfps. Water levels will rise around the casino but right now the berm is holding firm and is still quite higher than flood water levels. The tribe's roads department is maintaining the property on a daily basis making sure any ground water that gathers is pumped out of the

Crow Nations struggling to help tribal members in need

As storms sweep across the country during a fumultuous spring that will go down in the record books, tribal nations are struggling to find residents left stranded after flooding devastated the Crow Reservation in northern Montana on May 25, 2011.

Most of the state of Montana had been under some sort of flood advisory, as workers frantically fill sandbags and search crews are searching for those still unaccountable. "There are families and elders still isolated and stranded in their homes," said tribe spokesman Donald Spotted Tail on May 26, 2011. "There's no way for them to access basic human needs such as food and water." There is also the warning of water supply contamination in the region of the Little Bighorn River.

Tribal officials said the flooding has damaged at least 75 homes and about 150 people from the reservation remain at the Montana State University-Billings, along with 43 people from outside Billings, according to the Bureau of Indian Affairs.

Tribal members rushed to the aid of the residents that stayed behind during the evacuation. Food and supplies were delivered to more than 100 people. An unknown number of people from the Cheyenne Reservation were also evacuated because of concerns of flooding along the Rosebud Creek and Tongue

As a second storm front threated to bear down on the already flood soaked region, the Crow Nation had asked for help from the Montana Nation Guard and assistance which has been provided. Donations are still needed for those that were displaced after the storms and flooding. Many of these people were left without any clothes, food, or shelter.

To date the terribly poverty stricken tribe has made over 150 layoffs and is working to just get people back into homes on the reservation. The tribe is quickly depleting its funds in the effort. "We have never been a rich people: we've always struggled, but we've always survived. That's what we will do now", Old Crow said." "Our people are used to struggling; it's our way of life. We will do what we always do- pull together

Echo Hawk applauds the First Lady's Planting of the Three Sisters in the White House Garden

Submitted by Nedra Darling, Office of the Assistant Secretary-Indian Affairs

Assistant Secretary-Indian Affairs Larry Echo Hawk today joined First Lady Michelle Obama at the White House kitchen garden for the planting of the Three Sisters—corn, beans, and squash—a traditional indigenous agricultural method of planting. This activity comes a week after the launch of Let's Move! in Indian Country (LMIC) and continues to push the message of leading active and healthy lifestyles in Indian Country.

"Today's a big day for us in the garden because it's the first time we're going to use native seeds of corn, beans and squash in the way they've been planted for thousands of years,' Mrs. Obama said. "We're all pretty excited to continue this tradition. This is another example of a fun, easy way that we all can work together to be healthier. And that's what we're trying

"I am always very pleased when history acknowledges the wonderful achievements of our nation's first Americans," Echo Hawk said. "The agricultural contributions of the ancestors to contemporary American Indian and Alaska Natives are significant, and today's event is a great planted together, are referred to as the Three Sisters—stemming from tribal stories that weave the three agricultural staples into traditional narratives. This method is also known as companion planting. The science behind such planting techniques involves the mutually beneficial effects of their simultaneous growth. The corn provides a structure for the beans to climb, eliminating the need for poles. The beans provide the nitrogen to the soil that the other plants utilize and the squash spreads along the ground, blocking the sunlight, which helps prevent weeds. This method of planting and agriculture differs greatly from the more common methods of plowing.

The planting of the Three Sisters is intertwined with the LMIC initiative to end childhood obesity in Indian Country, In 2009, American Indian and Alaska Native children aged two to four had a higher prevalence of obesity (20.7%) than any other racial or ethnic group. In Indian Country, one in three children are overweight or obese before their fifth birthday and a national survey found that 18.9 percent of high school aged students are obese. LMIC brings together federal agencies, communities, nonprofits, corporate partners, schools and tribes to focus on four areas: (1) early childhood development, (2) healthy learning communities, (3) physical activity, and (4) increasing access to affordable, healthy foods. For more information on this initiative, please visit: www.letsmove.gov/ indiancountry.

The Assistant Secretary-Indian Affairs has responsibility for helping the Secretary of the Interior to fulfill his trust responsibilities to tribal and individual trust beneficiaries and promoting self-determination and self-governance for the nation's 565 federally recognized American Indian and Álaska Native tribes. The Assistant Secretary oversees the Bureau of Indian Affairs (BIA), which

Free Estate Planning and Will Drafting Service for Ho-Chunk Members

The Institute for Indian Estate Planning and Probate at Seattle University School of Law will be assisting Ho-Chunk members starting June 6, 2011, to draft a new will OR change an existing will that will comply with Tribal, State, and Federal law. Rebecca Mackie, an intern with the Institute working under the direction of Ho-Chunk Legislative Counsel Michael Murphy, will be able to meet with Ho-Chunk members up until July 27, 2011.

You need a will if:

- You are over 18
- You have, or may acquire, trust land, non-trust land, or personal property
- You have children or step-children under 18
- You want to leave property to someone who is not in your immediate, blood family
- You want to leave income from an interest to a non-Indian
- You want to stop further fractionation of your land

If you die without a will, the American Indian Probate Reform Act (AIPRA) will determine who will receive your trust land, but with a will you have many more options! If you are interested in learning more or having your will written, please contact Rebecca Mackie, located in the legislative office.

All services are free to any American Indian, regardless of tribal enrollment or ownership of trust land.

I would like to thank my co-workers in the Department of Administration at the House of Wellness for all that they have done to show their support to me as I embark on a new career path in law enforcement. Thank you all so much for the wonderful lunch you had for me on my last day of work. I would like to especially thank Fitness & Aquatics Director Scott Gilbeck and Aquatics Supervisor Cheryl Kidd – you are both great friends to me, thank you for everything. Finally, I would like to thank my staff: Kurt Greendeer, Eric Johnson, TJ Johnson, Unga Stacy, Lance Tallmadge, JoDel TreeTop, and Joe WhiteEagle. I enjoyed working with you; thank you for all the good times we shared.

Sincerely, Joanna Hollenback

Tribal Aging Unit holds annual picnic

John Kozlowicz Staff Writer

A rainy overcast day failed to dampen the spirits of the estimated 65 elders who attended the Annual Ho-Chunk Tribal Aging Picnic, held June 15 at North Wood County Park near Arpin, WI.

Following songs by the Hee-wah-shee-pee Singers (Martin Falcon, Samson Falcon, John Falcon, Valene Falcon, Gabriel Falcon and Mathew Mann) of Black River Falls and the posting of colors by Marlon and Joe WhiteEagle, members of the Sanford WhiteEagle American Legion Post 556 in Wisconsin Dells, the elders grabbed the dobbers and enjoyed 10 games of BINGO that offered various prizes.

Following a lunch that was prepared and served by TAU staff members from various locations, TAU Advisory Board Chairperson, Parmenton Decorah presented blankets to the past TAU Directors at the picnic; Annabelle Lowe, Sidney Lewis and Betty Kingsley. Also recognized were Rebecca Greendeer, Wayne Falcon and Marie Lewis who could not be present. Decorah stated that plaques would later be presented to the families of the late Iva LaMere and Barry Blackhawk for their dedication and contributions to the Ho-Chunk TAU while serving as TAU Directors.

BINGO was the main source of entertainment at the Annual TAU Picnic.
